New Wage-Hour Inspectors Go Back to School to Learn How to Investigate 19,000 Complaints

WASHINGTON.—Wage-Hour Administrator Elmer F. Andrews is wrestling with the problems of a school master these days. In its closing hours, Congress voted a deficiency appropriation of $1,200,000 for the Wage-Hour Division, and it is all to be spent on law enforcement—the division now finding itself with 19,000 unanswered complaints of violations on its hands.

Legion Building Plans Submitted to City Council

Legion Officials Request Permit to Build at Fair Park

FAVORABLE ACTION

Council Asks for Legal Description of Ground Desired

Another step toward the realization of a new $50,000 American Legion Hut at Fair Park was taken Tuesday when plans for the proposed building were explained to the Hope city council by H. O. Kyler, post commander, and Charles O. Thomas, chairman of the building committee.

Mr. Kyler and Mr. Thomas explained details of the proposed building and asked permission to construct the building north of the Fair Park lake and approximately 150 feet west of the Boy Scout Hut.

The council and Mayor W. S. Atkins on the proposed building, but deferred action on granting the request to build the hut on city property until the next meeting of the council at which time Mr. Thomas and Mr. Kyler will present a legal description of the plot of ground desired, and also inform the council whether the legion post desires a long-term lease or a deed to the property.

A miniature legion hut model, constructed by Billy Bob Herndon, was presented to the council by Mr. Thomas who said that the model had been approved by the building committee of the legion post.

Other Business

Other matters before the council Tuesday night included a report by Evan Wray, city meat and milk inspector, who said in his report that he had a record of all meat and milk inspections which are on file for public inspection at his office in the old fire station building, East Third street.

The council referred to the street committee a request by Adrian Jean to build an eating place on Second street between the postoffice and Bowdoin street.

The council approved, on a 50-50 basis, to oil the street from the end of the South Elm street pavement to Sixteenth street and on Sixteenth street to Main street. These streets lead to the high school building and are heavily traveled. Residents would be required to pay the cost of 50 percent of the oil, the city the other 50 percent.

The council also agreed, on the same basis, to oil the alleys in the fire district of Hope, merchants first being required to put up their half of the cost.

A stop sign was ordered erected at the intersection of West D and North Hervey streets.

Butler Gets Office

The council granted Street Commissioner T. H. Butler permission to establish an office in the city hall formerly occupied by the AAA office which has been transferred to the Elks building.

The council approved the appointment of C. A. (Archie) Williams as regular fireman at the municipal water and light plant at a monthly salary of $90. Mr. Williams succeeds the late Marion Monroe.

Amusement Show Is Held Over Here

Park Amusement Co., Will Remain Until Saturday Midnight

The Park Amusement company, a large traveling amusement park, will remain at the Garrett art lot in Hope until midnight Saturday, it was announced Wednesday by Manager Cliff Liles who said he was holding the show over for the second straight week by popular request.

The show is under auspices of the Young Business Men's association. In return for the patronage given the amusement company, Manager Liles announced a reduction in prices for all rides and concessions to enable everyone to have an opportunity to enjoy themselves.

All riding devices, the giant World's Fair Ferris wheel, the $10,000 merry-go-round, merry mix-up and baby auto ride and all concessions are now five cents to every one.

Manager Liles announced that the big new minstrel show, which has a reduced price to 50 cents with no extra charge for reserve seats, is available for both white and negro customers.

The amusement show played four straight weeks in Texarkana under the sponsorship of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and Police Radio Patrol to large crowds before coming to Hope.

The manager of the show invites everyone to visit the amusement park before it leaves at midnight Saturday for stamps to play there one week under the auspices of the Stamps Chamber of Commerce.

Germany provides 3,041 and Italy 2,671 of Australia's population increase of 9,137 from immigration in 1933.

With this money, Andrews will be able to increase his force of inspectors to 500 and his litigation force to 40 lawyers. But one trouble is that an inspector in this kind of work isn't much good until he has had some training, and Andrews is going to have to start his own schools to apply the training.

Four Training Centers

There will be four of them—in New York, Chicago, San Francisco, and Atlanta—and they'll be in operation by the first of September. New inspectors will spend about 10 days on their schooling—listening to lectures and getting general instructions, with older inspectors as the teachers—before they go out on the road.

The new inspectors are being chosen from the list at the Civil Service Commission offices, where the applicants took their examinations. Before going to school, most of the inspectors will be sent out for field work in company with older inspectors, so that they can get a first-hand glimpse of the job before they start studying about it.

It is no secret that the Wage-Hour Division feels mightily relieved over passage of the efficiency appropriation. It looked, for a time, as if the money would be denied, and officers of the division predicted that the entire law would collapse of its own weight if the money were not forthcoming. The compliance record has not been good so far, and they were afraid that if it got much worse all chance of ever enforcing the law would be gone.

Labor Fails A Friend

The A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. are supposed to be vitally interested in the work of the Senate civil liberties committee. Some time ago both organizations went in record in favor of continuance of its famous investigation into the activities of the Associated Farmers in California. But neither outfit did anything in particular to help the committee when help was needed.

That was in the closing days of the session, when the Schwellenbach resolution to extend the committee's life was about to come up for action.

The resolution was in the Senate's audit and control subcommittee, headed by Senator Byrnes, who was not entirely sold on the proposition. Just when he got ready to give it a green light, John L. Lewis made his famous "evil old man" outburst at Garner, and almost jarred Byrnes into killing the thing altogether.

A week later, Byrnes' committee brought the bill to the floor. The fate of the bill would meet very much in doubt, and Schwellenbach contacted A. F. of L. and C. I. O. leaders and told them that now was the time to speak up if they wanted the LaFollette investigation to continue.

Neither organization bothered to say one word about it. The C. I. O. is in so bad around the Senate that its silence didn't hurt much, but the A. F. of L. carries a lot of weight. The bill finally got through, but the labor organizations weren't the ones who did the pushing.

One thing that did help was Senator Cotton Ed Smith's impassioned speech against the bill. Missouri's Senator Clark announced that he had originally been pretty doubtful about the bill, but that after hearing Smith speak against it he was convinced that he ought to vote for it.

Finds Labor Law Violated in Hope

Dismissed From Court-house Job—Probe Child, Women Conditions

Deputy State Labor Commissioner H. C. Malcolm of Little Rock, in Hope to investigate a labor demonstration at the Hemstead county courthouse construction project Monday of this week, said Wednesday that four employees had been dismissed for violation of the state labor laws.

Mr. Malcolm said out-of-state labor was ineligible to hold jobs on the courthouse project because funds for the construction of the building were derived from local taxation.

Mr. Malcolm was to have a second conference with B. W. Edwards, contractor, during the afternoon.

Mr. Malcolm also reported that Mrs. Howard Proctor, secretary of the state industrial commission in charge of women and children, had made an investigation of working conditions in Hope and had found that labor laws were being violated.

Mr. Malcolm said employers had been warned to correct these conditions or face prosecution in court. He explained that the age limit for employment of both boys and girls was the same.

All children under 14 years of age are not to be permitted to work—except for parents during vacation.

A permit from the state labor department is required for the employment of boys and girls between the ages of 14 and 16, and they are not to be permitted to work before 7 o'clock in the morning or after 7 o'clock in the evening.

These children, between 14 and 16, are not to be permitted to work more than eight hours per day.

Girls under 18 are not permitted to work after 10 p. m. No female is permitted to work more than nine hours per day or more than six days per week, Mr. Malcolm explained.

The all-time high for millionaires was set in 1929, when 513 persons in this country had an income of a million dollars or more.

Six Teams Begin Play in District Softball Tourney

Bruner-Ivory Handicapped by Loss of Roy Taylor, Star Pitcher

PLAY OPENS AT 7:30

Three Games Scheduled for Opening Rounds Wednesday

With the late entry of 282 Service Station of Prescott filling out a six-team bracket, the entry list of the second annual district softball tournament closed Tuesday night.

The tournament gets underway at 7:30 o'clock this Wednesday night at Fair Park with Bruner-Ivory team of Hope opposing Nashville in the opening round.

Bruner-Ivory is handicapped by the loss of Roy Taylor, star fire-ball hurler, who has an injured hand.

Soil Conservation team of Hope meets Murray Auto Service of Prescott in the second game at 8:30.

A third game will be played between East Funeral Home of Texarkana meeting the winner of the Bruner-Ivory and Nashville contest. Games Thursday night will be determined by the outcome of the opening session.

All things seem to point to a closely-played tournament, as only top notch teams are competing. The Nashville team is an all-star aggregation with the best talent of Nashville's six teams represented.

Murray Service Station of Prescott has defeated both Bruner-Ivory of Hope and East Funeral Home of Texarkana. Bruner-Ivory has had things their own way in Hope but have not fared so well against East Funeral Home.

With each team having defeated the others, a well-played tournament is in the offing. 282 Service Station, also of Prescott, is known to have a good team; and Soil Conservation of Hope is leading its league.

How these teams will fare in tournament competition, however, is another story.

There will be three games each night of the tournament with each night's session starting at 7:30.

Polish Soldier Is Slain Near Danzig

Third International Incident Complicates Peace Conference

DANZIG—(AP)—The killing of a Polish soldier by Danzig frontier guards on the Polish border Wednesday clouded the efforts of Professor Carl J. Burckhardt, League of Nations high commissioner, to clarify the grave Danzig situation in a meeting with Danzig Nazis and Polish officials.

The meeting was brief and the subject matter was not disclosed.

The shooting of the soldier was the third serious incident marking the bitter Danzig quarrel between Germany and Poland in recent months. The versions of the shooting differed. Danzig police charged the soldier, carrying a rifle, failed to heed a command to halt and was shot. The Polish version was that the soldier had lost his way in darkness at the border.

Danzig Showdown Due

BERLIN, Germany—(AP)—A host of signs in Berlin Tuesday night pointed to an imminent, almost immediate development in the grave issue of Danzig and Poland, the Polish Corridor. In government quarters, which normally are willing to give a hint of events to come, there was an ominous silence.

But there continued the steady press campaign and in the rapid tempo of events of the past 10 days it was a seeming parallel to the days of American annexation, Munich, the Czechoslovak partition, the proleptarian Czech Republic and Moravia and the absorption of Mecklenburg.

Officials and Nazi party members insist that a Danzig solution will be a bloodless one. This may mean that the German leaders are convinced that Poland, like Czechoslovakia, will yield and that the German army may soon peacefully march into Danzig, lost in the World war, and into at least a section of the corridor which would connect Germany with its own separated segment, East Prussia.

It may be that Prof. Carl J. Burckhardt, League of Nations commissioner for Danzig, will not have time to carry on further communication with the British foreign secretary, Lord Halifax. Burckhardt in Danzig Tuesday declared he had no intention of going to London, but acknowledged that he had had "a short conversation about internal Danzig questions" in Germany. It was taken for granted this conversation was with Adolf Hitler.

Opposition Grows on Holiday Change

Stores Favor, Footballers Oppose, Early Thanksgiving Plan

NEW YORK—(AP)—A gathering of retailers grew Tuesday apocryphal with a pile-up of protests from rock-ribbed traditionalists against President Roosevelt's plan to change the day of Thanksgiving this year from November 30 to November 23.

Many in authority and business men, favored the president's precedent-smashing idea to help business, but the football people were both amazed and flabbergasted over what to do with games scheduled for November 23.

There may be two Thanksgivings this year.

Tradition-bound New England was largely checked.

Senator Bridges (Rep., N. H.) led the opposition with a statement that the president's announcement was "a complete surprise because there had been no intimation of it in Mrs. Roosevelt's column."

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Fritz Kuhn estimated the dues-paying members of the German-American Bund at 20,000 Wednesday after testifying that the membership records of the organization had been destroyed at his order because of prospective investigators.

The Bund leader appeared unexpectedly before the house committee investigating un-American activities, traced the history of the Bund organization, denied the German government had any connection with the group, but testified his brother, Max Kuhn, was a supreme court justice at Berlin under the Nazi regime.

Bailey Vetoes Bill by Weisenberger

Turns Down Street & Road Bill as Threat at Sinking Fund

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Governor Bailey vetoed the Weisenberger bill to provide cities and counties with funds for street and road improvements Tuesday.

The measure, by Representative Bruce Weisenberger of Hope, appropriated $750,000 annually for street and road work after state highway revenues exceed about $13,000,000 pledged under the $10,000,000 refunding act to debt service, highway maintenance and construction.

Mr. Bailey said the bill would deprive him and the state Board of Finance of the power to set up a sinking fund reserve provided for in the refunding act of the recent special legislative session.

Cities and counties would have divided the funds equally under the bill, supported actively by the Arkansas Municipal League.

Weisenberger's Reply
Governor Weisenberger said Wednesday "Governor Bailey's veto of H. R. 4 was not only unexpected but was a

Emergency Clause Is Knocked Out by Ruling on Senator

Supreme Court Holds Gutensohn's Senate Appointment Illegal

BAILEY RAPS JUDGE

Says Holt Should Have Disqualified Self—Attorney's Kinsman

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—The Arkansas Supreme Court in a four-to-three decision Wednesday blocked Governor Bailey's plans for the immediate refunding of the state's 140-million-dollar highway bond debt.

The court held invalid the emergency clause attached to the refunding act by the special legislature, but declined to pass at the present time on the constitutionality of the act itself.

Without the emergency clause the act does not become effective until October 30, a month after the date on which Bailey proposed to carry out refunding.

The friendly test case will be sent back to Pulaski chancery court for further action, the court declaring the question of constitutionality should be "more exhaustively briefed."

Written by G. Smith

The opinion, written by Chief Justice Griffin Smith, reversed Pulaski chancery court which had held the program constitutional.

Concurring with Smith were Associate Justices J. S. Holt, T. H. Humphreys and Basil Baker.

The minority dissent was by Justices Frank G. Smith, E. L. McHaney and Special Justice V. G. Holland, who was appointed to the court by Governor Bailey after Justice T. M. McHaffey disqualified himself.

The governor was in the courtroom when the opinion was handed down, but had no comment.

Chief Justice Smith explained that the court held void the vote cast by Paul Gutensohn, Bailey's appointee in the senate, on the emergency clause; and ruled that no emergency clause could be attached to the refunding act because the measure involved a "vested right."

The ruling on the emergency clause upheld an opinion delivered by Attorney General Jack Holt during the recent special session of the legislature.

Bailey Attacks Court

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Governor Bailey Wednesday attacked Associate Justice J. Seaborn Holt, of Fort Smith, for not disqualifying himself from participation in the supreme court decision on the refunding program.

The governor contended Holt should have disqualified himself because he is a cousin to Attorney General Jack Holt, who was a party to the defendant to the suit.

"The people have been denied great benefits by the vote of one man," said Bailey. "His action . . . will be tried at the bar of public opinion next summer. There is another court to which we can appeal."

Security Wage in South Is Advanced

Unskilled WPA Wages in South to Rise From $26 to $35

BULLETIN

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—WPA Administrator Floyd Sharp said Monday a general wage increase for Arkansas WPA workers in all classifications will become effective September 1. Wages now range from $26 to $73 per month. The new scale will range from $31.20 to $75.40.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Commissioner F. C. Harrington announced Tuesday a new schedule of monthly security wages for WPA project workers which, he said, would raise the national average about $2.50 a month.

This, he asserted, would mean that the old average of $65 a month would be stepped up to about $67.50, effective September 1.

In general, Harrington said, the new schedule would mean a substantial increase in WPA wages in Southern states. In Northern states, present scales will be retained with some

Now Is the Time for All Good Men—

With the objectives of the recently enacted Hatch bill, no one can quarrel. In fact, with the objectives of the bill, no one can quarrel. These are two of them: First, to prevent federal employers from being blackballed out of part of their pay by forced campaign and party fund assessments; and second, to prevent national party conventions from being "stacked" with federal office-holder delegates who are under obligation to the existing regime.

President Roosevelt, hailing the Hatch bill as "a step in the right direction," has signed it, and it is now the law of the land.

Like most solutions, however, this one raises a new problem in its stead. There seems no way to carry on a republic like our own without political parties. Political parties demand organization. Organization demands money. Where is the money to come from now?

In the first place, state party organizations and office-holders are not affected by this federal act. It is not impossible that the next party conventions will be as heavily weighed with state office-holders as those of the past have been with federal. Unless and until states pass similar legislation, this is bound to be true.

In the second place, since federal officeholders may no longer be tapped more or less at will for party funds, both parties when in power will be faced with the problem of how to raise them. Voluntary contributions may still, of course, be made, and it is possible that most federal job-holders, long educated in the knowledge of which side of the bread is thickest spread with butter, will continue to contribute to party funds on a genuinely voluntary basis.

The alternative is to go back to the system of large, lump-sum contributions just before elections from those who have it to give, like Rockefeller or the United Mine Workers.

Efforts have been made in the past to devise plans for broadening the base of party support, and both major parties would welcome means of securing regular, even though very small, contributions from rank-and-file members. The radical parties here, and the totalitarian parties in Europe, have solved this problem. They simply tap all members automatically for a slice of their weekly pay.

This, in a country where political allegiance to parties is less fixed, is scarcely desirable. Most Americans want to know who's running before they decide which party to support. But the study of ways to broaden as far as possible the supporting base of all major political parties is worth the attention of all of them.

Widespread voluntary support, not only just before election, but all the year 'round, is the democratic way to maintain a party system in a republic.

Sacro-illiac Strain Needs Careful Examination:
Confused With Sciatica

Many physicians are convinced that the most common cause of pain in the back, low down, is sacro-illiac strain. The chief symptom is the pain, which varies from a mild discomfort on one side of the joint where the backbone of the hips join the backbone to the kind of severe agony which makes sitting, standing, or living a persistent torture.

Many a person with a constant, penetrating pain far down in the back finds himself unable to sleep, and, as a result, becomes nervous, loses weight because of appetite, and is seriously sick.

The sacro-illiac strain may result from a slight injury like a sudden twist in golf, tennis, or even ping-pong, to the more serious strain that comes from lifting heavy weights, bending suddenly, falling off a horse, or trying to keep erect while skimming.

In many instances, afflicted persons have no recollection of the exact moment when the strain occurred, but by studying their daily experiences carefully, they arrive sooner or later at the exact time when the disturbance appeared. For this reason the doctor goes carefully into the record of events as far as two, three, or four years back to find the time when the difficulty first appeared.

Sometimes the pain radiates down the leg and is called sciatica; in fact, this is a frequent mistake in diagnosis. At other times the pain spreads up around the spine, or down into the groin. People with this condition complain that cannot lie with comfort on either side and that turning in bed brings an excruciating pain.

Naturally, such sudden efforts as coughing, sneezing, or straining the body in any way are associated with a severe pain.

The doctor, in order to make certain of the diagnosis, does not satisfy himself merely with record of a sudden strain. Usually the patient is asked to stand erect in a good light. The shoulder will seem to be lower on the side where there is no disturbance. The patient is then asked to point to the exact spot where pain is felt. Then he lies flat, face down, and the doctor carefully presses on the different points along the spine to localize exactly the area where the disturbance exists. Next, he has the patient lie flat on his back and the doctor makes a number of tests to make certain that the condition is actually a sacro-illiac strain and not sciatica, or any of other conditions which might produce a similar set of symptoms.

There are many conditions that can produce a pain in the back, varying from a simple condition like a strain such as a resuscitation condition as tuberculosis of the spinal column, fractures of the bones of the spine, a pushing outward of the soft material that is between the bones, and tumors affecting the spinal area.

When it has been determined definitely that the condition is a sacro-illiac strain, many different methods of treatment may have to be tried. For instance, the doctor may want the patient to wear a belt for a brace. He may find it necessary to manipulate the spine in order to overcome the stresses in the wrong places. Since this may be painful, it may be necessary to give the patient an anesthetic during the manipulation.

The Whiner
This I observe to his renown, A whiner's always sitting down. In short, to put it in a line, A fellow cannot work and whine. He smooths no boards and spreads no paint. While he is voicing a complaint, It's only men who hum a song Who stick to tasks and get along. This is the truth: no man reveals Offhand in haste the woe he feels. Your pity seekers drive no nails. The while they tell their sorry tales. The whineper seldom gets ahead. And there's a reason, be it said. For while he stops to air his woes Something achieved the worker shows. The toiler having ill to bear Does what he can to lessen care. Meanwhile the whiner stands about. Deep in despair and can't get out.

Bailey Vetoes Bill

complete reversal of policy on the matter. In view of the fact that he had vetoed for Mr. McHaney and myself H. B. 95 which was passed during the Regular Session to make more money available for construction, repair and maintenance of farm to market roads and municipal streets, we consulted the Governor in regard to his attitude prior to our bringing up H. B. 4 for consideration in the Extraordinary session. He assured us that he would sign it, but requested that it be amended to safeguard the sinking fund created in the Refunding act. Mr. Brickhouse submitted an amendment, which after the Governor's legal advisers had approved it and he himself had assured us it was satisfactory, was adopted and became a part of the bill as vetoed.

Governor Bailey quotes from paragraph two of Section 1 of H. B. 4 in his veto message. This was added at his request and in my mind was never necessary to protect any part of the Refunding Bill for the first paragraph plainly provided that the $750,000 appropriated in H. B. 4 was to come out of the first revenues available to the State Highway Fund in excess of the funds to pay the items for which appropriations were heretofore made.

NEW REMEDY FOR UGLY HUSBANDS

When your husband (or wife) gets cross, ugly and grouchy; when he finds fault with the coffee, the eggs, the bacon, and the cook, you may well suspect that he has a touch of biliousness or so-called "Torpid Liver," so prevalent in hot weather. All he may need to set him straight is a little Calomel, or better still, Calotabs, the improved calomel compound tablets that make calomel-taking a pleasure. Calotabs give you the combined effects of calomel and salts, helping Nature to expel the sour, stagnant bile and washing it out of the system. One or two Calotabs at bedtime with a glass of water—that's all. Next morning your system feels clean and refreshed, your head is clear, your spirit bright, and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you wish and go about your work or pleasure.

Genuine Calotabs are sold only in checker-board (black and white) packages bearing the trade mark "Calotabs." Avoid imitations. Family package only twenty-five cents; trial package ten cents, at your druggist. (Adv.)

and specifically saved by the terms of said bill.—
"Certain selfish interests and their political henchmen in the state are uncompromisingly opposed to a more equitable distribution of the highway revenues between the State Highway Commission, the bondholders and the folks back home. They brought about the vetoing of H. B. 95. Doubtless, they prevailed on Governor Bailey to reverse himself and to veto H. B. No. 4. I can not subscribe to the theory that it is just and equitable to attempt to increase the revenue available to the State Highway commission for state highway construction, repairs and maintenance by 200 per cent as the advocates of the Refunding Bill maintain, and not increase the revenue available for construction, repair and maintenance of farm to market roads and municipal streets at all. No one wants more fervently than I to see our system of state highways improved as rapidly as possible. But I do not approve the expenditure of all the additional monies for state roads and none for county roads and municipal streets. After all, the boys that live at the forks of the creek and the folks that live in the cities and towns of Hempstead county and Arkansas pay the 7 1/2 cent gasoline tax too, even though no state highway may go by their door."

a communication to Secretary of Commerce Hopkins urging an earlier Thanksgiving as "good for business." His organization represents some 5,700 department, specialty and dry goods stores, which were estimated to do well over $500,000,000—or around 15 per cent of the yearly total—in the peak shopping season from Turkey Day to Christmas.

Horn said the president's move would have an "assuring effect" upon manufacturers and distributors of consumer goods.

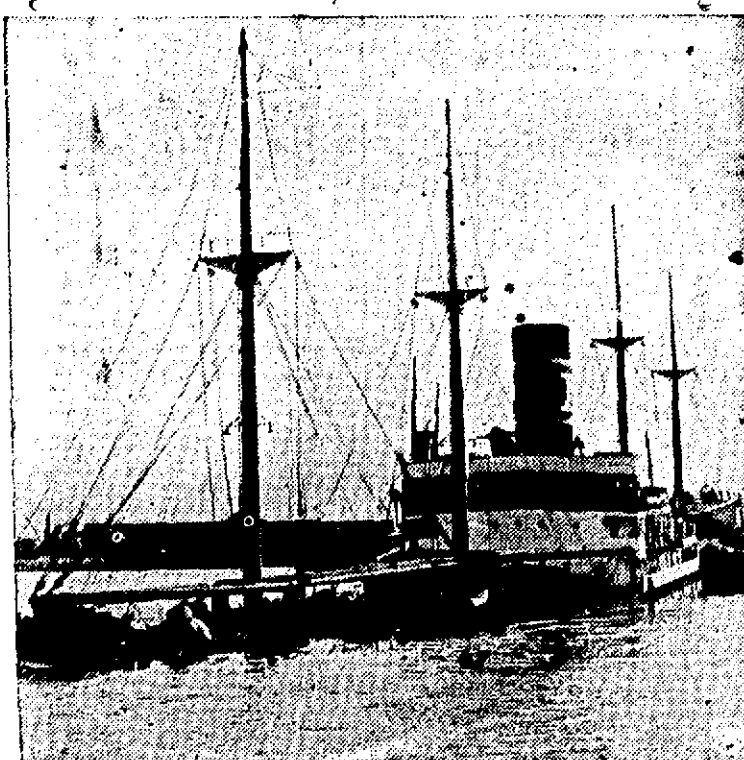

"With a four-week shopping period before Christmas instead of three," he said, "the prospects for a strong advance in business activities during the rest of 1939 are considerably enhanced."

From the angry tone of authorities most vehemently opposed to the proposed change it appeared there might be a dual Thanksgiving.

The State Department in Washington pointed out that the governors of the individual states have more say about Thanksgiving than the president because his proclamation is valid only in territories and the District of Columbia and among federal employes.

Corsets in Style Again, Says Expert

She Has One, But Hasn't Got It on at the Moment, She Admits

"Small waists and new corsets are coming back," said Mrs. Gimbel. "American women are going to be more luxurious. Clothes are to be very elaborate with heavy brocades and small waists and the new corsets are going to be the fashion."

"They are beautiful but uncomfortable," she added, "but women will wear them. Women will wear anything if it's the fashion. We have had comfort for years. Now we are going back to dignity. You have to hold your head up with a corset. Everybody has to be dignified wearing corsets."

Mrs. Gimbel said she had one of the new corsets, but didn't have it on at the moment.

Tamara, Russian singer returning for the reopening of the Broadway hit show "Leave It to Me," thought Mrs. Gimbel's remarks interesting, but added: "No corsets for me. I don't

Duck Season Will Last for 45 Days

Hunting Period Will Be From November 15 to December 29

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Secretary Ickes announced Tuesday there would be a 45-day season for duck hunting this fall under regulations covering the 1939 migratory bird season.

The new rules were approved by President Roosevelt in accordance with the federal migratory bird treaty with Canada and Mexico.

The hunting season in the southern zone which includes Texas, for ducks, geese, Wilson's snipes or jacksnipes is November 15 to December 29.

The regulations on waterfowl hunting fix the daily bag limit for ducks, at ten in the aggregate but the possession limit remains at 20 in the aggregate. When a daily limit includes canvasback, redhead, buffhead and ruddy ducks, not more than three of any one or more than three in the aggregate of these kinds may be taken, and possession of these particular kinds of ducks is limited to not more than six of any one kind or six in the aggregate.

With the Hempstead Home Agent Melva Bullington

Thermos jugs and lunch baskets are in their heyday this summer what with neighborhood day camping hitting a new high in popularity among Hempstead county home demonstration and 4-H club members.

The Hopewell Home Demonstration Club members with their husbands and children spent Thursday, July 10, on Lake Laura at the Branch Fruit and Truck Experiment Station. A picnic lunch was spread at noon. Motor boating was one of the major sports.

In the good old summer time, neighborhood day camping solves the rural family's need to meet and mingle with friends for fun and fellowship, according to Miss June Donahue, Extension specialist in community activities, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture.

Streamlined to the rapid pace of modern life, Miss Donahue says, day camping although eliminating the necessity of provision for sleeping, serves the same purpose as the more prolonged "camp meeting" of old, which were such an anticipated treat each year to our early settlers.

A successful day camp for the neighborhood needs careful planning and efficient committees in charge. It may be in the form of a homecoming celebration or a folk festival of sports.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

ANIMAL PICTURES

Any barnyard is full of excellent human-interest picture chances... such as this close-up shot of a hen mothering her chicks.

WHEN someone mentions bird and animal pictures, most of us think of zoos, forests, or the African jungle. But—if you live on or near a farm—you have access to a number of fine animal subjects. And take my word for it, domestic animals yield just as good pictures as wild ones.

Just for the fun of it, why not spend a day picturing farm animals? Go after expressive, human-interest shots, such as a hen mothering her brood, or pigs struggling for position at the trough. Shoot close-ups of a placid, end-chewing cow, or a husky work-horse—just as if you were taking pictures of a person. Many animals have definite almost-human expressions at times... and they'll make fine pictures for your album.

Distant shots showing the animal small, will be disappointing unless it happens to be an incidental figure in a scene. Most focusing cameras talent, and singing; or, when more closely patterned after earlier days, it may fall on a Sunday and be a gathering devoted to strictly religious activities, Miss Donahue says.

Plenty of shade, access to safe drinking water and adequate toilet facilities should be taken into consideration when selecting the site for the day camp. The entertainment committee should plan a good program of events of take care of all ages. And last, but not least, after the festivities are all over and the crowd has departed, the cleanup committee should go to work so the place won't remain an eyesore for weeks to come, the recreation specialist advises.

Restoring that exquisite crisp look to sheer summer fabrics is no small achievement, but it can be done.

There are three requisites to success in laundering such materials as organdy, voile, organza, point d'esprit, georgette, tulle, mousseline de soie, handkerchief linen, or net dresses in order to retain their original loveliness, according to Mrs. Ida Fenton, extension economist, home management, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture.

The big three include a neutral soap used in soft water, careful handline during the tubbing and ironing, and proper stiffening materials to restore crispness.

The handline must be gentle, squeezing rather than rubbing. A good sand, abundant rinsing and partial drying protected from wind and sun unless white material followed by dipping in the proper density of stiffening material are also necessary.

The proper density for the starching material, Mrs. Fenton says, is best determined by making a stock starch solution, mixing 1 cup of starch in 1 cup of cold water and when dissolved, adding one cup of boiling water and cooking over a slow flame five minutes. One tablespoon of the hot starch should be added to one quart of water and the ready dry garment dipped into it, squeezed, and hung to dry.

Before ironing, the garment should be dampened by sprinkling with water and rolled up so that the moisture penetrates all portions equally. Organdy, tulle, or organza should be ironed on the right side. Most of the other popular sheer fabrics have a full finish and require ironing on the wrong side, Mrs. Fenton advises.

If the fabric is of a dark color, stiffen it by mixing one teaspoon of powdered gum arabic in one quart of hot water. Otherwise, proceed as described for using starch.

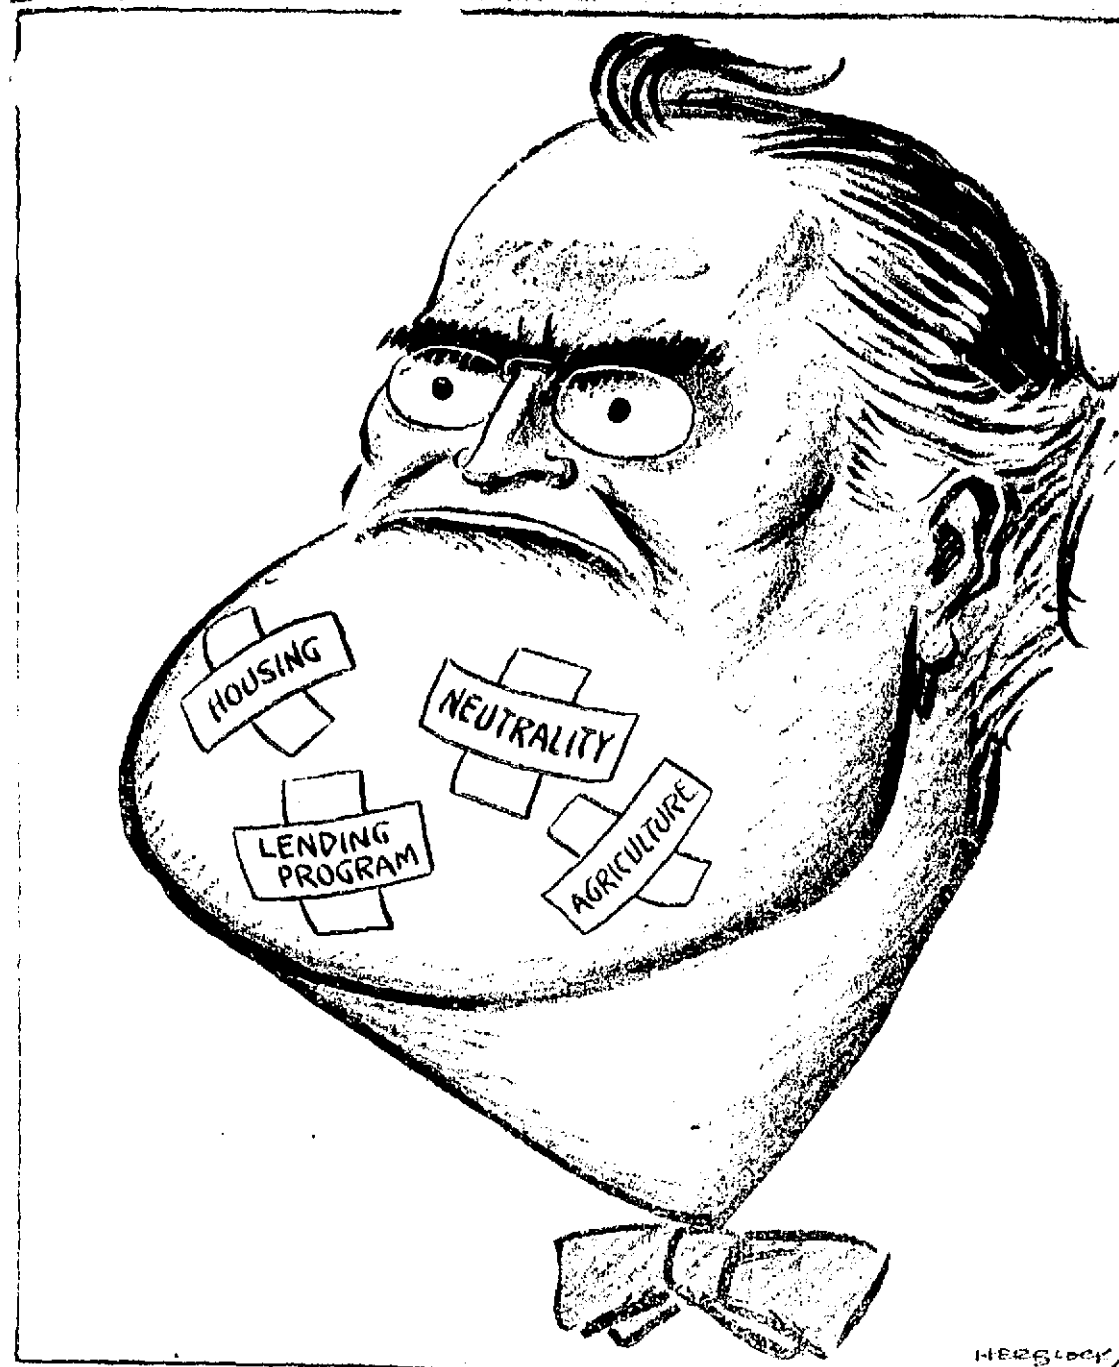

One of the necessary factors to remember in planning menus for hot weather is to count your calories.

This is particularly important during the "dog days" when the body loses heat very slowly, and the safe and satisfactory and practical thing to do is to reduce the caloric intake to a minimum, according to Miss Gertrude E. Conant, extension nutritionist, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture.

One of the easiest caloric cutting practices which Miss Conant suggests is the use of many gelatin dishes. Gelatin, being a protein, doesn't furnish many calories and has the added advantage of helping in the digestion and "saving" of other protein foods, Miss Conant says.

Lime gelatin with cottage cheese makes a satisfactory salad or entree, and another favorite in hot weather is

HARRISON IN HOLLYWOOD

Paris Reproduced for "Hunchback" Even Has Medieval Smells

By PAUL HARRISON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD — All over the lot: An inspection of the principal set for "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" is permitted by RKO, but it will not allow anyone to see Charles Laughton at work, or even in makeup. Obviously the studio wishes to keep secret the miraculous process by which Mr. Laughton's paunch will be transferred from his waistline, fore, to his shoulders, aft.

However, the set is worth seeing even when it is peopled only by a few hundred extras in peasant rags, aristocratic brocades, middle-class home-spuns and uniforms. Also by Director William Dieterle, who would be conspicuous anywhere. He always wears fresh white gloves because he fears bacteria. And now he wears a straw hat so large in diameter that his feet are in shadow beneath the brim of 10 and 2. Dieterle hates the sun.

Architects and craftsmen have created a five-acre section of 14th-century Paris, with the market place before the cathedral and the stone houses and narrow, winding streets that surround it.

Even Smell Is Real

First thing you see upon entering the set from the mess tent and makeup room is a whole beef being turned on a spit over a bed of real coals. It's a real beef, too. Only trouble is that at this writing it has been cooking for three days and is fit only for burying.

Chickens also are roasted over the pit, but the extras see to it that they don't get old enough to spoil.

When Dieterle started the picture he asked the studio to buy him six loads of city garbage to give authentic atmosphere to the notoriously unclean Paris of that day, but the health department nixed the idea. A realistic stench pervades the place, though, because the sun has gone to work on the merchants' vegetables and defunct fowl, the sausages and dried fish. Otherwise the area is full of milling citizens who, assisted by a trained bear and troupes of acrobats and clowns, are doing their best to simulate a holiday mood.

Dog Refuses to Act

Ida Lupino loves dogs, and dogs love Ida Lupino—so to the distress of Dieterle William Wellman, who loves obedience. In "The Light That Failed" works a Scottie which is supposed to hate Miss Lupino, but doesn't.

The dog is supposed to know all the routine movie tricks, but his trainer just couldn't persuade him to growl convincingly at the actress when a scene called for it. True, he finally did growl a little, after production had been held up for half an hour, but while growling he wagged his tail vigorously as a conciliatory gesture. Wellman ordered the tail held with wires, and then the Scottie wouldn't growl at all.

Wellman told Miss Lupino to slap the pooch. She refused, then wept, but finally snatched it. Result was that the dog began growling at Wellman, and didn't wag his tail either. I don't know whether they ever will get the scene.

Hammy Idea

A similar situation confronted William Powell and Director W. S. Van Dyke in the new "Thin Man" picture. The actor is supposed to be attacked by a big Irish wolfhound named Derrick, but Derrick wouldn't chase Powell with any aggressive spirit. And hoped along and licked his face when he caught him.

This dog's trainer was helpless, too, but Powell himself had an idea. He said, "I know how to make him go for my throat. Instead of a necktie, I'll wear a strip of bacon!"

If this imitation and these attacks on British interests and rights in North China are to go on unchecked, the British government would be obliged to take a serious view of the situation. — Prime Minister Chamberlain, to the House of Commons.

Beatty Doubts F.D. Will Split Party

AP Writer Presents Summary of Political Opinion in Capital

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer
WASHINGTON. Now that the men who make political history in the capital have said all they have to say about 1940 for the second, what do they really think about the presidential year ahead—off the record?

I have put the question to several key men. I have talked to Democrats and Republicans, pro-Roosevelt men, and anti-Roosevelt men, economy-minded men and spenders.

"They all are willing to think out loud for your benefit, so long as I do not give them away. It's too early to be putting definite opinions opposite one's name, especially for men in a position of leadership, or close to it. Early opinions often come home too roost."

But just so you won't be misled, I'm giving you a general focus on the political complexion of these men. That will also give you an idea how much what they say should be discounted, if any.

Furthermore, all bets are off in the event of a World war or similar emergency.

F. D. R. Is Practiced

Here goes:
A Republican representative close to the strategists who helped settle parts of President Roosevelt's program for 1939.

"There's a lot of talk that the President and his conservative opposition in the Democratic party will split the party wide open in 1940. We are not convinced this is true. If it were, of course, that would mean we would win in a walk."

"We are well aware that the President is a practical politician. Some people even call him an opportunist. Therefore, he's not going to promote a split unless he thinks the New Deal can win in the long run by such tactics."

"For instance, if the President thought the country were going Republican in 1940 in spite of everything he and the Democratic party could do, he might be tempted to split the Democrats, separating the 'liberal' sheep from the 'conservative' goats, as he would put it, and let us win in the process. Then he could sit back on the sidelines kibitzing for four years, hoping to get the New Deal back into the saddle in 1944."

"For that reason, we're not counting our chickens before they hatch, and the minority will be in there voting solid, holding its lines tight in the next congress."

"Breach Will Heal"
An economy-minded Democratic representative who fought the President all along the spending line throughout the 1938 session:

"There is a fundamental difference between the President and the old-line Democrats, such as myself, who believe in keeping down government costs on general principles. There's no getting around that."

"But I don't believe the split within the Democratic party is hopeless. I rather look for the breach to be healed before 1940 rolls around. After all, we could support any candidate nominated by the convention, even a third-term Mr. Roosevelt, with perfect logic. We agree with his objectives, but we disagree with his methods."

"Furthermore, remember what Carter Glass said, 'The Democratic party at its worst is better than the Republican party at its best.' I think most all Democrats will come running to the party fold in 1940."

"F. D. R. In Earnest"
A dyed-in-the-wool New Dealer, not a congressman or senator, but a man who knows what the inner Administration strategists are discussing among themselves:

"What the President's opponents in the Democratic party can't seem to get through their heads is that the

SERIAL STORY

Murder on the Boardwalk BY ELINORE COWAN STONE

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday: Unable to locate her cousin, Christine moves to the hotel named in her mysterious telephone conversation. Almost down to her last cent, Christine accepts Wilmet's offer, agrees to do sketches at his Boardwalk concession.

CHAPTER III
CHRISTINE hurried back to the hotel to assemble her sketching materials. She was to meet her new employer by the Twentieth Century Pier. . . . The new employer's name, she had learned, was Wilmet—George Wilmet.

When it had come to giving her own name, Christine had hesitated with an unprecedented reluctance. Then, almost as if someone else had spoken, she heard herself blurt out, "Nevin—Grace Nevin."

Hurrying along the crowded Boardwalk, avoiding the omnipresent wheel-chairs, the loitering pedestrians, and the pigeons that swarmed under foot, eager for the grain thrown them from the benches that lined the promenade, Christine tried to explain her squeamishness about giving her name. Eventually she excused it on the grounds that Cousin Emma would be embarrassed to find that a Thompson was working on the Surf City Boardwalk.

She found her workshop to be a small booth next door to the Twentieth Century Pier—one of the noisiest amusement centers along the Boardwalk. It was several feet below the level of the walk, and you went down to it by a ramp at one side. The "studio" was frugally furnished with an easel, a camp stool, and at the rear, on the beach side, with a bench some eight feet long, having a slab of concrete for a top.

The place had apparently taken a beating from dampness and frost, for the walls were cracked and crumbling; and someone had recently mended the top of the bench and the floor about it with fresh cement, into which Christine's heel sank and stuck.

Mr. Wilmet, coming to her rescue, was nervously apologetic: "I'm so sorry, Miss Thompson. I had to do some repairing."

Christine got out her sketching materials and prayed for a chance to use them.

When, after 15 minutes, no customers appeared, Christine suggested, "Nothing draws a crowd like the sight of someone working at an easel. Why don't I begin with the Maharajah of Bahawalpur—or whatever his name is?"

She indicated a figure that stood by one of the pillars of the pier.

HE was, as Christine had intimated, a magnificent spectacle—his warm brown skin set off by a robe of some rich Oriental material and belted with a golden cord, through which was thrust an exquisitely chased dagger. About the head of the "maharajah" was draped a turban of bright silk, fastened with a single gem; and his slender brown feet were laced into jeweled sandals. He stood like a statue, his arms majestically folded, gazing with brooding brows out to sea.

Already Christine was at work; and almost immediately a curious crowd began to gather along the railing of the Boardwalk above.

As she sketched, she heard someone say, "She's drawing Chandru—you know—that Indian swimmer over there."

As if he had heard, the gorgeous Oriental turned, fixed his eyes upon Christine, and detached himself from his pillar. Although he was not a tall man, there was in his bearing an air of authority before which the crowd fell back. He moved to the railing and stood, looking down. His eyes, Christine was surprised to find, were not dark, but a tawny brown, with lurking yellow lights.

At length the "swami" extended a hand and said in a voice astun-

Chandra's gleaming eyes stared out from the portrait on Christine's easel. They seemed to pierce the unknown, to look beyond. . . . The swami was pleased with the completed work.

isimly deep and resonant, "It is good, I will take it."

When Christine passed the sketch to him over the railing, he slipped a bill into her hand and turned away.

"Wait!" Christine called. "You change—"

"I have said that it is good," he returned, and strode away.

A woman said, "Of course that was staged. These Boardwalk people advertise each other."

It did prove to be good advertising. Soon Christine was busy. For a while Mr. Wilmet hovered on the outskirts of the booth; but eventually he melted away into the crowd, and Christine did not see him again that day.

He had been surprisingly generous about her commission. Although she had worked only a little over a half day, it would be almost $4.

She must, however, look for cheaper quarters. She found a room on a side street, and having already committed herself as "Grace Nevin," she registered under that name, and hurried back to the Crestview to retrieve her belongings, and see if Cousin Emma had not sent some message.

But there was no message. Christine went upstairs, puzzled and uneasy. She told herself that it was this uneasiness which accounted for her strange feeling that something was amiss in her room.

SHE had unpacked very little the night before. Getting ready to move should not take long. . . . Nevertheless, she sat down, a frown between her brows.

The maid had finished her work here before she had returned from breakfast. There was no reason why anyone should have entered the room afterwards. . . . Nor why the bags should have been disturbed on their rack. . . . Yet they had been.

When Christine made an inventory of her few possessions, they were all in their places; yet her uneasiness persisted.

Descending in the crowded elevator, she was startled out of her preoccupation by murmured conversation behind her:

"It couldn't have happened if Several of these conservative Democratic senators who are fighting the President seem to have the idea that this is some sort of primary campaign, and it'll be kiss and make up next year, and no questions asked. They're going to be surprised."

"Conservatives Would Bait"
A man close to a purge, one of those Democratic senators the President tried to squeeze out of the Senate last year:

"It all depends on what the Democratic convention does in 1940. If the convention names a man acceptable to some of us the President doesn't seem to like, all well and good. But if the President tries to put one of his yes-men in the saddle—and succeeds in doing either—it is my considered judgment that 90 per cent of the conservative element of the Democratic party will bolt. Yes, and most of them will vote the Republican ticket."

A Democratic senator in the economy bloc:

"If the president runs for a third term, he'll split the Democratic party wide open. That's all there is to it. It's happened before that way, and it will happen again."

There you have a fair cross section of opinion in high places. Note the variation of views. Yes, you've guessed it. They are no more sure of what it's all about than you and your neighbor. They argue just as much as you and your neighbor.

And which of these men are closest to being right? That's anybody's guess. But remember that both the Democratic and Republican opponents of the President in the rebellious house this year agree that the Democratic party can kiss and make up before disaster occurs, with little harm done to either side. Those opinions look pretty far to the experts who profess no interest in the fate of either party next year.

THE PAYOFF

By GLENN MCNEIL

NEA Service Special Correspondent
KNOXVILLE—Settled comfortably in a soft leather chair in the office of James D. Hoskins, Charles Moore tells the president of the University of Tennessee how he originated the drop kick.

They had not seen each other since they were members of the institution's first graduating class 48 years ago.

Moore, now a resident of San Francisco, explained the Volunteers' first football team in 1890.

"We practiced down there where the tennis courts are now," he explains, pointing out an open window. "We didn't have any seats and didn't charge admission to games. People stood along the sidelines. . . moved up and down the field with the players."

As captain, Moore conducted practice, worked out plays and perfected signals.

"We didn't have a coach," he asserts. "I remember the day the first coach was hired."

"I had the team down on the field practicing and a man by the name of Cannon came down and told me he had been hired as coach and would take over. That kind hurt me."

"I was pretty fiery back in those days and when I got through telling that fellow what I thought, he went back up the hill to the office. I never saw him again."

First Drop Kick Beats Vanderbilt

It was during his days as captain that Moore discovered the drop kick. He built a play around it. . . kept the set-up secret for four opponents would get hold of it.

"We used the play for the first time against Vanderbilt," he recalls. "It won the game, but officials ruled it out."

"They said the quarterback should have touched the ball before I received it from center."

"The funny . . . fortunate for us . . . thing about it was that in that game I played quarterback. I argued that point and won out."

"As far as I knew that was the first time the drop kick had ever been used."

Moore selected the Tennessee colors. As president of the athletic association it was left to him to choose colors for the school's initial field day.

"At that time," he elucidates, "there was some sort of flower. I don't know what they called it, growing profusely on the hill. It was from it that I obtained my color idea."

Tennessee Colors Taken From Daisy

Dr. Hoskins interrupts to explain that the flower was the daisy which he testified once literally covered the campus.

"For that first field day," Moore goes on, "I dressed 'Little Doc Kent,' a small negro boy who helped keep the office clean, in a loud soft half of which was orange and half white Tennessee colors. For myself I had tailored a long, split-tail coat and tight-fitting trousers of a bright yellow hue. I wore a derby. My, but I sported around that day."

Dr. Hoskins tells how he led Tennessee's first yell . . . at a military event.

He relates how the institution has grown. There were only nine in the initial graduating class. Nearly 500 graduated this year.

Moore spent 25 years with the United States Bureau of Chemistry. He originated the first pure food law, the one finally enacted in 1906. . . . has since fought for a better one.

$140,000 Federal Aid Fund Released

$180,000 Balance Sought on Original Amount of $320,000

WASHINGTON—(AP)—W. W. Mitchell, Arkansas state highway director, announced after a conference with government highway officials Tuesday $140,000 of federal road money had been released to Arkansas.

He said this meant construction work would proceed at once on a highway bridge across the Fourche river in Perry county, Arkansas, to cost, with approaches, from $150,000 to $160,000.

Mitchell, W. W. Zass, chief engineer of the Highway Department and E. H. Flannery, engineer for federal aid and procedure, conferred for several hours with Commissioner Thomas McDonald of the Public Roads Administration and L. E. Boykin, chief legal counsel of PRA.

"Some 50 WPA road projects on which state road money amounting to $320,000 had been used caused the government to tie up that amount of federal aid to Arkansas on the theory the projects were construction, rather than maintenance jobs," Mitchell said.

"We had classed them as maintenance projects for which state money could be used without affecting federal aid requirements."

"We convinced the officials today a number of the projects were maintenance jobs, obtaining the release of about $140,000 of the $320,000."

"There'll be more conferences, and whether any of the $180,000 balance is obtained or not, we'll proceed with our scheduled projects by using money available to the state for freeing toll bridges."

WASHINGTON.—At last comes a concrete demonstration that it is nice to live in a democracy than in Germany, even though the weather is hot over here.

Almost on the same day came the German official warning that the people must eat less food and the American official pronouncement that people in 100 U. S. cities would be persuaded to eat more food.

Liberty and freedom of speech and the right to go to the First Baptist church are not very material things to talk about so long as you are free to have any one or all of them. But food is something else. You have it or you don't have it and you begin to know the difference in 24 hours. Loss of church privileges or the right to give or take a little soap box oratory goes on at a slow pace and may take years.

It is our personal impression that nothing will re-establish the virtues of democracy in Yankee minds so quickly as stories of Germany's cutting down the food supply to support rearmament.

In spite of the fact that we are wallowing knee-deep in military expenditures, nobody here has started to cut down the daily ration.

It's Pure Jealousy, If Child Resents Arrival of New Baby

DEAR MRS. GRAY:

I have your letter of the twentieth in which you explain your worries about the attitude of your small grandson to his new baby brother.

Young Jimmy, let's call him that, is extremely jealous of his baby brother and abuses him because he hates him.

It is, of course, pure jealousy, as he feels that his place has been usurped by a rank outsider. He is still a baby himself, being only two and a half, and he misses the attention formerly given him. No longer does his papa come in and hunt him up, less him in the air and call him "Old Timer."

But what gets him, really, is the fact that his mother has to spend so much time on the new arrival.

I am afraid he must have been a little spoiled before the birth of his brother, and can't bear to share his parents' love.

I don't know just exactly what would work in this case. To punish him would only make things worse, as you say. But you might try this: getting him a little pet of his own, say a nice gentle puppy young enough to need nursing and attention.

He might learn that all little tender things need time and care. You could explain that baby people are just like baby animals.

Then, too, it might take his mind off himself. He probably needs to be away from headquarters more. He would get interested in things outside his usual orbit and develop other interests.

"Greet" His Returnings

What he needs now is to learn to appreciate the attention and love of his parents. If he could be kept away for short times and greeted with enthusiasm when he returns, that might help him to think that home is the best place of all, baby or not.

Another thing. Give him some of the things the baby gets, even to a bottle at times.

One Similarity

To date we have noticed only one similarity between the food programs in Germany and in the United States. In Germany the government is trying to persuade loyal Nazis to drink less beer, as beer uses grain and grain is a spare crop in Germany.

In the United States relief stamps cannot be used to buy beer. But there again the reason is different. The Department of Agriculture figures that beer in this country is all tangled up with moral issues instead of food shortages and it is just as well to work the safe side of the street.

In reply to John L. Lewis's scathing attack on him, Vice President Garner just said: "No comment." It was pretty hard to think of a stronger statement for retaliation.

The Duke of Windsor is perturbed about "snoopers" who peer through field glasses at his private swimming pool. Which immediately makes us want to see what's in the pool.

One large industrial firm just declared a dividend. It is reported that hundreds of stockholders fainted in union.

Jim Farley and John Hamilton both predicted victories for their parties in the next election before sailing for Europe. This is on the Q. T. and exclusive—but one of them is wrong.

The U. S. has a "conscience fund" for money returned by people who have received too much from the government. They say there was a dime or so in it at one time.

I'm against him individually, personally, concretely, and in the abstract.—John L. Lewis, C. O. head, making clear his views on the Garner candidacy.
